Introduction
Welcome to the DMC digital exhibit dedicated to telling the story of Japanese Canadians’ struggle to protest and oppose the forced sales of property in the 1940s. During the 1940s, Canada enacted mass displacement and dispossession of people on racial grounds, a collective moral failure that remains only partially addressed. Japanese Canadians lost their homes, farms, businesses, as well as personal, family, and communal possessions. This exhibit illuminates the harms visited upon Japanese Canadians and compels students to consider the challenge of grappling with this difficult past and bringing meaning to today’s world.

The Exhibit
The exhibit is presented in four chapters, each with a unique approach to telling this compelling chapter of Canadian history. While the chapters follow a kind of temporal logic there are points within each chapter that overlap and move forward or backward in time to provide a fulsome picture. The chapters are characterized by threads that bring the story to life by considering the voices of those impacted by the injustice of dispossession. Each chapter is indicated by a theme beginning with Hope-Kibou, shifting to Worth-Ikigai, Endurance-Gaman, and ending with Echoes-Hibiki. The chapters are interactive and contain archival sources, video clips and other interactive elements.

Approach
The use of the exhibit as an instructional tool requires access to technology. The exhibit interface is compatible with all types of technology and operating systems (Mac OS, Android, Windows, iPad, Chromebook, smart phone, etc.). The lesson activities included with the exhibit are intended to be completed within time allotted for classroom instruction. However, the accessibility of the exhibit on multiple platforms will allow teachers to allocated these activities as extension activities, as part of a larger study on Japanese Canadian history, or to reduce the challenges faced when accessing technology in your classroom. All activities link back to specific chapters and include all necessary teacher instructions, handouts and evaluation rubrics as needed. It should be noted that almost 300 letters of protest are accessible from this exhibit and this allows teachers to assign extension activities or to delve into a deeper study of the response Japanese Canadians made in reaction to the forced sales of property.

Lesson Matrix
A lesson matrix has been provided to guide you through the activities and the associated exhibit chapters. The matrix is organized by chapter title, but also includes a focus question and brief overview of the lessons activity(s). The focus question connects the lesson activities to the content of the exhibit and offers a tool to hold a summary discussion with the students after the activity is completed. Alternatively, teachers can use the focus question to guide an independent student investigation into each chapter.

Acknowledgments
This resource was developed by Mike Perry-Whittingham and Carolyn Nakagawa with guidance from Nikkei National Museum staff and generous support of the Digital Museums Canada.

  - The pitch addresses the fundamental question - Why our schools must teach this history? |
Chapter 1 – Kibou

BINGO Game

1. Individually or in pairs have students view and record notes. Advise them that they will be asked to answer questions about this chapter and present their answers as part of a contest.

2. Allow 15-20 minutes for the note taking and viewing of the exhibit. Keeping with the individual or pairs approach established at the outset assign a Bingo sheet to each student/pair (Handout 1.1).

3. Explain the rules of the game to the students:
   - Each student/pair records their name(s) on the top of the sheet
   - Students are to ask others to print their names and sign any square which they can answer
   - Students CANNOT sign their own sheet
   - Individual students cannot sign off of more than one square on any individual sheet, teacher can choose if they wish to be part of the game and sign sheets
   - Students are given 15 minutes to complete the sheet
   - Call time and determine who has the most squares signed (you can preassign a number, a column(s) or simply go with the largest number signed off)
   - Teacher collects the top five highest totals (sheets are eliminated if the answer is incorrect)
   - Teacher calls upon student that signed a given square and asks them to provide the answer to the class (see Evaluation Rubric 1.1)
   - If correct teacher checks off square and moves to next box, if incorrect go to the next sheet and continue with the next square - previous sheet is eliminated from contest.
   - Go through all squares, or predetermined number to assign champion.
Chapter 2 – Ikigai

Chart and Examine

1. Provide students (individually, in pairs or small groups) with Handout 2.1, prior to viewing the chapter on Worth.

2. Hold a brief discussion on the meaning of worth, highlighting the different ways in which we can consider worth:
   - Individual worth as measured through our skills, attributes, attitudes, work ethic, etc.
   - Community worth as measured by common values, beliefs, supports, language, etc.
   - Economic worth as we more conventionally understand it through things that have or create financial value like work, homes, businesses, chattels, etc.

3. Instruct students to complete only Part A of the chart as they work through the exhibit. Allow 15 minutes for this activity, then debrief the answers recorded under the three headings. Have a brief summative conversation considering the question ‘How did Japanese Canadians build worth?’

4. Explain to the students that Japanese Canadians, and other marginalized by race or ethnicity, faced daunting challenges to building worth and becoming recognized as contributing members of Canadian society.

5. Have students (individually, in pairs or small groups) return to the exhibit and focus on the sub-chapter titled ‘Fighting to Belong’. While viewing this section of the exhibit have students record three different examples of challenges faced by Japanese Canadians. Students are to record a type of challenge (ie right to vote) and provide a supporting example of how Japanese Canadians faced these challenges (ie Tomekichi Homma's legal challenge). Students share out examples of challenges and actions taken by community members (see Evaluation Rubric 2.1 for examples)

6. As a summative discussion activity have students consider the following question ‘How did Japanese Canadians persevere in the face of economic, racial and institutional discrimination?’
Chapter 3 – Gaman

Letters of Protest

1. In this set of activities students will examine selected letters of protest from the chapter titled Gaman. While the exhibit archive contains almost 300 letter samples, the exhibit focuses on 6 selected letters. Leave out the letter written by Mr. T. Fukumoto as this will be used later in this activity. Assign students to read a set number of letters, this can be as few as one and as many as five, at your discretion. For each letter provide students with a copy of Handout 3.1 to uncover the details contained within the letter(s).

2. Allow sufficient time for a thorough reading and analysis of the letters and then bring the class together to debrief the notes recorded in Handout 3.1.

3. Redirect the students to the exhibit and have them read the letter of protest written by Toyemon Fukumoto. Provide each student with a copy Handout 3.2 and a copy of the reply from the Office of The Custodian (Handout 3.3).

4. Instruct students to consider both the original letter of protest and the reply from the Office of The Custodian as they complete the Likert Scale activity in Handout 3.2. Students fill in the survey and explain the reasons for the choices made. The reasons may be recorded in note form.

5. There are options for the debriefing activity. Using only the information gathered by the students and a whiteboard you can run a quick tally of results to build a picture of student understanding. Alternatively, use an interactive polling tool or build a pie chart to give students a visual representation of survey results. Take some time to probe the nature of the survey responses for validity, accuracy and depth of understanding.
Chapter 4 – Hibiki

Elevator Pitch

1. Direct students to review Chapter 4 and gather notes on the details with specific reference to issues of acknowledgment, redress, apology and memory.

2. Once students have completed the research phase conduct a brief summative discussion to probe for understanding and depth of knowledge. It is important that students come away with an understanding of why this history must be remembered, how it should be remembered and what the institutional responsibilities are in preserving this past.

3. Organize students into teams of 3-5 and provide each team with Handout 4.1 which outlines the components and criteria for an Elevator Pitch.

4. Review the topic for the pitch, to make mandatory the study of Japanese Canadian history and the dispossession as part of the annual school curriculum. Explain to the teams that this is one way in which the state can demonstrate a commitment to acknowledging wrong doing in the past and to keep the memory of these tragic events present so that young Canadians can learn from these errors.

5. Allow students 30-60 minutes, or more at teacher discretion, to plan, design, and prepare the pitch. Remind the student teams that they are presenting the pitch to the Board of Trustees for your school district and that only one of the pitches will be selected as the winner.

6. A traditional pitch is very brief and does not include visual aids, however you may want to incorporate a visual component or extend the traditional time frame (30 seconds to a minute).

7. Post or share a copy of Evaluation Rubric 4.1 to provide students with a clear picture of expectations and how to organize an effective and interesting pitch. The rubric can be used to aid in selecting the winning pitch. You may use students in the role of school trustees to bring a peer review element into the activity.

Canada Department of the Secretary of State Office of the Custodian Japanese Evacuation Section

Phone Pacific 6131 File No 1474

Mr. Toyemon Fukumoto,

Reg. No. 03007, Slocan City, B. C. Dear Sir:

We are in receipt of your letter of February 24th. Your remarks have been carefully read and we can appreciate that the disposal of your property is a matter of personal concern to you. You are aware, however, that the sale of all Japanese owned properties is being carried out as a part of the policy of liquidation outlined by the Canadian Government. As previously advised you, an independent valuation of this property was obtained and the sale was effected based on this valuation.

While we regret that you are not in accord with the action we have taken in this matter, we can only advise you that the sale has been completed, and, as previously advised, funds credited to your account.

We note your request that we forward you $50.00 per month from your account which at the moment has a credit balance of $871.00, but in view of the fact that you are living in an Interior Housing Project under the jurisdiction of the B. C. Security Commission it is necessary for us to consult them on this question of funds--the matter, however, is receiving our immediate attention.

Yours truly,

P Douet, Administration Department

PD/ER
Elevator Pitch
An elevator pitch is a type of presentation that focuses on a short description of an idea that is presented to a specific panel. In this activity you will be making a pitch to the local Board of Trustees (School Board). This pitch addresses the question: “Why our schools should teach about the forced sale of Japanese Canadian owned property”. Create a team, create the pitch, deliver the pitch and win the support of the Board of Trustees!

Elevator Pitch Criteria
An elevator pitch is frequently used in the world of design or marketing where creative ideas and innovation are important. In these fields, where competition is fierce and a large number of proposals are presented it has become customary to keep the presentations very brief and to the point. This is the concept behind an elevator pitch; something that could be done in the time it takes to ride an elevator to your floor. For the purposes of this activity you must confine your pitch to a maximum of 2 minutes. Your pitch will be evaluated using the criteria explained below. Your pitch must include each of these elements.

⇒ Hook - Start your presentation in a creative and attention-grabbing manner.
  o Be ready
  o Introduce yourself and team
  o Great facial expressions and enthusiasm

⇒ Goals - Clearly state your goals for this pitch.
  o What do you hope to achieve?
  o Be precise and detailed o Ensure goals are connected to the ‘ask’

⇒ Reasons – Include evidence supporting your goals
  o Why is your pitch important?
  o What is the primary reason for your pitch?
  o What evidence supports your pitch?

⇒ Closing - Close the pitch in a convincing and creative way
  o Leave the audience with something memorable
  o Summarize the primary goal(s) and reasons
  o Invite the trustees to meet with your team
